CEO LETTER

The beginning of 2025 marked a life-changing season for our family. After a year and a half of praying, waiting, and preparing, we were finally able to travel to Bulgaria and bring home our two daughters. For six years, they had lived in a group home after the heartbreaking loss of their mother. Watching them become part of our family has given us an even deeper understanding of what it means to belong, to be loved, and to have hope for the future.

As I reflect on our daughters' journey and the work of Child Impact International, I am continually drawn to the words of Psalm 68:6: "God sets the lonely in families; He leads out the prisoners with singing." The word translated lonely can also be rendered solitary, a fitting description of the experience of so many vulnerable children around the world.

We recognize that adoption is not possible for every family. Yet this verse reveals God's heart for every child who feels alone: they were never meant to face life in isolation. God's desire is for each one to experience the love, security, and belonging that come through family and community.

That is the heart of Child Impact's mission. We are committed to serving the world's most vulnerable children, those whose lives have been shaped by poverty, exploitation, abuse, or loss. Many have experienced hardships that no child should ever endure. They often wonder how they will overcome the obstacles before them or whether the dreams in their hearts will ever become reality.

As I visit our projects around the world, I meet children whose lives have been transformed because someone chose to care. Sponsored children eagerly share their gratitude for the person who believes in them and invests in their future. Survivors who have been rescued through Operation Child Rescue speak with relief and hope as they begin new lives in safety. Time and again, I am reminded that what amazes these children most is not simply the assistance they receive, it is the realization that someone on the other side of the world values them and has chosen to stand with them. To many of these children, that kind of love feels like family.

Because of your generosity, countless children experienced that hope in 2025.

God opened remarkable doors for Child Impact this year. We have been blessed with opportunities for growth, and we embrace them with humility and anticipation. Every new sponsor, every new partner, every new project, and every new opportunity represent something far greater than organizational growth, it represents another child who will be protected, encouraged, and given the opportunity to flourish.

Thank you for making this ministry possible. Together, we are reminding vulnerable children around the world that they are not forgotten, they are deeply loved, and they belong.

With gratitude and hope,

Dr. Tom L. Evans, CEO
